BIOGRAPHY

Bibi Joan (1985) is an artist from Amsterdam (NL) who studies gender roles, sexuality and power relations. The nude body plays a central role in her work.

In her projects, she focuses on the relationship between men and women. She is interested in the way we perceive and interact with each other. What roles do we take on and what are the power dynamics?

She explores these themes by combining photography, reflection and dialogue. Her work is often a response to traditional beliefs and stereotypes in our society. She is working at the boundary of research and activism, but her work always has a strong personal approach.

With her work she tries to empower humans to free themselves from gender-related as well as body-related stereotypes and taboos.
